Review of ABS Publications Program

The ABS has recently conducted a comprehensive review of its publications strategy with the aim of providing clients with information in a manner that is cost-effective while still meeting the needs of clients. As a result of the review, the ABS is:

- discontinuing some publications that have only a small number of clients;
- using alternative (new or existing) publications to present basic statistics from discontinuing publications; and
- introducing other data services to meet specific information needs of clients.

While this approach may not suit the needs of some clients, overall the strategy will enable the ABS to better meet client needs for statistics while giving due regard to the costs of publishing.

Information that was contained in discontinuing publications will still be available from the ABS either from related publications, or by phoning 1800 620 085 (toll free) or contacting ABS Information Services in each capital city (see back cover). The main related publications are grouped with the relevant discontinuing publications (indented) in the following list.
