

SECTION XXVII.

INDUSTRIAL UNIONISM AND INDUSTRIAL LEGISLATION.

§ 1. Development of Trade Unions in Australia.

1. Historical Development of Trade Unionism in Australia.—A special article, reviewing the development of trade unionism from its inception, appeared in Year Book No. 9, pp. 937-41.

2. Registration under Trade Union Acts.—The benefits conferred by registering trade unions under the Trade Union Acts in force in the various States are not held in much repute; consequently the statistics of registered trade unions of employees not only do not represent the position of unionism, but, in addition, the statistics themselves for past years are so defective as to be practically valueless. The particulars furnish no reliable indication of the numerical and financial position of trade unions. Some of the registered unions fail to supply returns; this non-supply may lead to cancellation of the registration. Some of the unions have obtained the cancellation of their certificates of registration, the apparent reason being that they proposed registering under the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act or a State Arbitration Act. In Queensland, some of the largest labour unions withdrew from registration during 1911, mainly on account of the necessity for closer restriction of their objects as set forth in their rules, consequent on legal decisions affecting trade unions. In Victoria, only seven unions of employees are registered, and in South Australia sixteen unions were registered at the end of 1916. Particulars relating to membership and financial position of many of these unions were not furnished. It will be seen, therefore, that the available information is too meagre for statistical purposes.

3. Registration under Industrial Arbitration Acts.—Western Australia and New South Wales up to 30th June, 1908, were the only States with Industrial Arbitration Acts under which industrial associations could be, and actually were, registered. The number of registered unions in New South Wales shewed a gradual increase from 1902 to 1907, the figures in the latter year being 109 unions of employers, with 3,165 members, and 119 unions of employees, with 88,075 members. Under the Industrial Disputes Act, which succeeded the Arbitration Act of 1901, it was not necessary to furnish the information. Since the Act of 1908, industrial organisation proceeded rapidly, owing to a general desire on the part of the workers to obtain the status necessary to entitle them to the advantages offered by the Act. The Act of 1908 was repealed by that of 1912, and in 1912 there were 117 industrial unions of employers and 192 industrial unions of employees on the register. On the 31st August, 1914, there were 105 industrial unions of employers and 160 industrial unions of employees registered. On the 25th April, 1919, there were 114 industrial unions of employers, and 161 industrial unions of employees on the register. Registration had been granted to 5 of the 161 employees' unions subject to amendment of rules. In Western Australia, the employers' unions numbered 45, with 441 members, in 1904; 59 unions, with 520 members, in 1905; 57 unions, with 534 members, in 1906; 56 unions, with 552 members, in 1907; 48, with 409 members, in 1908; 47, with 408 members, in 1909; 46, with 444 members, in 1910; 46, with 554 members, in 1911; 49, with 749 members, in 1912; 48, with 581 members, in 1916; and 52, with 810 members, in 1917. From 1904 to 1908 unions of employees were in a fairly stationary condition. Since 1909, however, there has been a rapid expansion. At the end of 1904 and 1905 there were 140 unions, with 15,743 and 15,461 members respectively; in 1906 there were 130 unions, with 16,015 members; in 1907, 121 unions, with 14,544 members; in 1908, 121 unions, with 15,187 members; in 1909, 122 unions, with 17,282 members; in 1910, 130 unions, with 20,429 members; in 1911, 152 unions, with 28,934 members; in 1912, 153 unions, with 30,453 members; in 1916, 134 unions, with 25,403 members; and in 1917, 137 unions, with 26,359 members. These figures include councils and associations. Registration under Commonwealth legislation began in 1906. In that and the four following years, there was but one union of employers; another was registered in 1911. The unions of employees registered were 20 in 1906, with 41,413 members; 24, with 57,306 members, in 1907; 37, with 69,536 members, in 1908; 7, with 14,161 members, in 1909; 10, with 3,760 members, in 1910. Twenty-four unions of employees were registered in 1911. The membership given above is that at time of registration. At the end of 1912 there were 3 employers' organisations, with 351 members, and 96 employees' organisations, with 245,735 members, on the register under the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act. On the 31st December, 1916, there were 5 organisations of employers, with 5,181 members, and 110 organisations of employees, with 422,787 members on the register.

4. Types of Trade Unions in Australia.—The trade unions in Australia are very diverse in character, and range from the small independent association to the large interstate organisation, which, in its turn, may be merely a branch of a British or international union. Broadly speaking, there are four distinct classes of labour organisations, viz. :—(i) the local independent, (ii), the State, (iii) the interstate, and (iv) the Australasian or International, but a number of variations occur from each of these classes. The leading characteristics of each of these types was briefly outlined in Labour Report No. 2 (pp. 7 to 9) issued by this Bureau.

5. Total Number of Unions, 1918.—As already stated, the figures for trade unions registered under the Acts do not represent the position of unionism in Australia. In 1912 the Labour and Industrial Branch of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics was established, and by the cordial co-operation of the officials of the labour organisations, comprehensive figures relating to the development of organised labour are now available. The following table gives particulars of the number of trade unions, the number of branch unions, and the number of members in each State, the Northern Territory and the Commonwealth at the end of 1918 :—

TRADE UNIONS, BRANCH UNIONS, AND MEMBERS, STATES, NORTHERN TERRITORY, AND COMMONWEALTH, 1918.

| Total | 767 | 1,836 | 581,755 |
| Commonwealth* | 394† | 2,200† | 581,755 |

* Allowing for interstate excess. † Number of distinct organisations and interstate groups of organisations in the Commonwealth—not the total number of organisations, which are practically independent and self-governing. (See next page).

In the preceding table the number of separate unions in each State refers to the number of unions which are represented in each State, exclusive of branches within a State. That is to say, each union represented in a State is only counted once, regardless of the number of branches in that State. Except in the last line, the number of branches indicates the number of branches of State head offices, which may, of course, themselves be branches of an interstate or larger organisation. In taking the total number of separate unions in the Commonwealth (see last line but one), it is obvious that, in the case of interstate and similar unions, there will be duplication, since each such union is counted once in each State in which it has any branches. In the figures given in the last line allowance has been made for this duplication. State branches of interstate or federated unions, as well as sub-branches within a State, are included under the heading "Branches" in the third column—last line. It should be observed, however, that the scheme of organisation of these interstate or federated unions varies greatly in character, and the number of separate Commonwealth unions does not fairly represent the number of practically independent organisations in Australia. In some of these unions the State organisations are bound together under a system of unification and centralised control while in others the State units are practically independent and self-governing, the federal bond being loose and existing only for one or two specified purposes. It may be seen, therefore, that there are 394 distinct organisations and interstate groups of organisations in the Commonwealth, having 2,200 State branches and sub-branches, and a total of 581,755 members.

6. Number of Unions and Membership in Industrial Groups, 1918.—The following table shews the number of unions and members thereof in each State at the end of the year 1918. The number of unions specified for each State refers to the number of different unions represented in each State; that is to say, interstate or federated unions are counted once in each State in which they are represented, but sub-branches within a State are not counted. In order to avoid disclosing the affairs of individual unions, in cases where there are only either one or two unions in any group in a State, the membership is not given separately.

Particulars are given in Labour Report No. 9 (pp. 13-14) of the number of male and female members of unions and the percentage of such members on the total number of adult wage earners. Other tables in the same Report shew the classification of unions according to number of members and the number of central labour organisations. Information is also given below as to the development of trade unionism since 1901.

7. Development of Trade Unions in Australia, 1901 to 1918.—The following table shews for the years specified the total number of trade unions in the Commonwealth, and the number and membership of those unions for which returns are available. The estimated total membership of all unions for years prior to 1912 is shewn in the last line:—

NUMBER AND MEMBERSHIP OF TRADE UNIONS IN COMMONWEALTH, 1901 TO 1918.

| Estimated total membership of all unions | 97,174 | 175,529 | 364,732 | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. |

NOTE.—Particulars for 1907, 1908, 1909, and 1910 are given in Labour Report No. 2, p. 13.

These figures shew that while the number of unions in 1918 was more than double the number in 1906, the estimated membership during the same period increased nearly fourfold. During the last nine years the estimated annual increase in membership was greatest in the year 1912, when it amounted to no less than 68,492, and least in 1915, when it was only 4,760.

8. Interstate or Federated Unions, 1918.—The following table gives particulars as to the number and membership of interstate or federated unions in 1918 :—

NUMBER AND MEMBERSHIP OF INTERSTATE OR FEDERATED UNIONS IN THE COMMONWEALTH, 1918.

| Particulars. | Unions Operating in— | | | | | Total. |
|-------------------------|----------------------|-----------|-----------|------------|------------|---------|
| | 2 States. | 3 States. | 4 States. | 5 States.* | 6 States.† | |
| Number of Unions | 14 | 17 | 13 | 18 | 33 | 95 |
| Number of Members | 14,709 | 35,885 | 58,376 | 95,042 | 265,135 | 469,147 |

* One union in this group has, in addition to branches in each of the five States, a branch in the Northern Territory.

† Three Unions in this Group have, in addition to Branches in each of the six States, a Branch in the Northern Territory.

It appears, therefore, that 95 out of the 394 separate associations and groups of associations in the Commonwealth are organised on an interstate basis. The membership of these 95 unions amounts to 469,147, or no less than 80.6 per cent. on the total membership (581,755) of all unions.

9. Central Labour Organisations.—In each of the metropolitan towns, as well as in a number of other industrial centres, delegate organisations, consisting of representatives from a group of trade unions, have been established. Their revenue is raised by means of a per capita tax on the members of each affiliated union. In most of the towns where such central organisations exist, the majority of the local unions are affiliated with the central organisation, which is usually known as the Labour or the Trades Hall Council or the Labour Federation. In Western Australia a unified system of organisation extends over the industrial centres throughout the State. In this State there is a provincial branch of the Australian Labour Federation, having a central council and executive, and metropolitan and branch district councils, to which the local bodies are affiliated. The central council, on which all district councils are represented, meets periodically. In the other five States, however, the organisation is not so close, and though provision usually exists in the rules of the central council at the capital town of each State for the organisation of district councils or for the representation on the central council of the local councils in the smaller industrial centres of the State, the councils in each State are, as a matter of fact, independent bodies.

The table below shews the number of metropolitan and district or local labour councils, together with the number of unions and branches of unions affiliated therewith, in each State at the end of the year 1918 :—

CENTRAL LABOUR ORGANISATIONS.—NUMBER, AND UNIONS AFFILIATED, 1918.

| Particulars. | N.S.W. | Victoria. | Q'land. | S. Aust. | W. Aust. | Tasmania. | C'wealth. |
|---|--------|-----------|---------|----------|----------|-----------|-----------|
| Number of Councils | 4 | 5 | 5 | 3 | 10 | 1 | 28 |
| Number of Unions and Branch Unions affiliated | 143 | 188 | 58 | 80 | 159 | 18 | 646 |

The figures given in the preceding table as to number of unions do not necessarily represent separate unions, since the branches of a large union may be affiliated to the local trades councils in the several towns in which they are represented.

Between the trade union and the central organisation of unions may be classed certain State or district councils, organised on trade lines and composed of delegates from separate unions, the interests of the members of which are closely connected by reason of the occupations of their members, such, for example, as delegate councils of bakers, bread carters, and mill employees, or of unions connected directly or indirectly with the iron, steel, or brass trades, or with the building trades.

§ 2. Laws Relating to Conditions of Labour.

1. Tabular Statement of Statutes affecting Labour.—The statutes in force at the end of 1918 in the several States of the Commonwealth, which, more or less directly, affect the general conditions of labour, are shewn in the tables on pages 991-2 of Year Book No. 11. The following additions have been made to the Statutes in force therein: in New South Wales an amendment of the Industrial Arbitration Act 1918; in Western Australia an amendment to the Early Closing Act in 1917; and in Tasmania an amended Workmen's Compensation Act 1918.

2. Provisions and Administration of the Acts.—For information regarding the benefits sought, and the provisions for the registration, administration, and record-keeping, etc., under these Acts, reference should be made to Year Book No. 9, pp. 949 to 952.

3. Registered Factories.—The number of establishments registered under Factories Acts is shewn below:—

4. Comparative Statement of Factories Law in Australia.—The tables on pp. 994 to 999 of Year Book No. 11 shew at a glance the chief provisions of the Factories and Shops Acts in the Commonwealth. An amendment to the Early Closing Act in Western Australia was enacted in 1917.

5. Mining Acts.—Under the Mining Acts the employment underground of all females and of boys under fourteen years is prohibited. A minimum age, usually seventeen, is fixed for employment as lander or braceman at plats and landing places; no lander, braceman, underground worker, or man in charge of motive power may be employed more than eight hours a day. A large number of scientific provisions for the protection of the lives and health of miners is also inserted in the Acts. Enginedrivers must hold certificates of competency. Persons may be licensed to certify to the condition of boilers. Provision is made to enable injured persons or the relatives of persons killed to recover damages if the injury or death results from a breach of the regulations referred to above. Inspection of mines is fully provided for. Sunday labour is forbidden. In New South Wales and (since 1st February, 1910) Victoria still more advanced mining legislation exists; numerous sections are designed to ensure the well-being of the workers, such as limitation of hours, etc.

6. Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Acts.—In each of the States, Acts have been passed allowing compensation to workers who have been killed or injured while engaged in industrial occupations. In the Commonwealth, one Act provides for compensation to all workers employed by the Commonwealth, and another to all seamen working on ships registered in Australia. A conspectus of these Acts is given below.

7. Other Acts.—Other legislation regulating conditions of labour has been enacted by the States. The British Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act (38 and 39 Vic., c. 86) has been adopted in all the States except New South Wales and Queensland. Servants' registry offices are placed under administrative control, and the rates of commission chargeable are fixed by regulation. Power is given to workmen to attach moneys due to a contractor who employs them, in order to satisfy a claim for wages, such wages being made a first charge on moneys due to a contractor. Workmen are given a lien for wages over material whereon they are working, even if it becomes part of other property. This is in addition to the common law lien, which ceases when possession of the property is parted with. Workmen's wages are protected from attachment. In Victoria, provision is made for the compulsory resumption of suburban lands to provide workmen's homes.

8. General Results of Industrial Legislation.—The results of the legislation described must be sought in the Reports of the Inspectors of Factories of the several States. Generally speaking, the perusal of these reports and of the reports of Royal Commissions which have inquired into the working of the Acts, affords satisfactory evidence that the Acts have, on the whole, effected their objects.

§ 3. Legislative Regulation of Wages and Terms of Contract.

1. General.—Two systems, based upon different principles, exist in Australia for the regulation of wages and general terms of contracts of employment. A "Wages Board" system exists in Victoria and Tasmania, and an Industrial Arbitration Court in Western Australia. In the industrial legislation of New South Wales, Queensland, and South Australia, both systems are embodied, Industrial or Wages Boards, as well as Industrial Courts, being instituted. In Victoria, Wages Boards' decisions may be reviewed by the Court of Industrial Appeals. In New South Wales, Industrial Arbitration Acts of 1901 and 1905 instituted an Arbitration Court. This court expired on 30th June, 1908, having delivered its last judgment on the previous day. Wages Boards were substituted under the Industrial Disputes Act 1908, and subsequent years; while the Act of 1912 introduced the mixed system. The Industrial Arbitration (Amendment) Act, assented to on 22nd March, 1918, amends the law for the regulation of the conditions of industries and industrial arbitration. The Act provides for the establishment of a Board of Trade and of special and deputy Courts of Industrial Arbitration, and also for the appointment of Industrial Boards on the recommendation of the Court. There is also the Arbitration Court of the Commonwealth, which has power, however, to deal only with matters extending beyond the limits of a single State.

The chief aims of the Wages Board system are to regulate hours, wages, and conditions of labour and employment, by the determination of a Board usually brought into existence for any specified industry or group of industries by petition or application. Under the Industrial Arbitration Court system an industry does not technically come under review until a dispute has actually arisen. Most of the Acts, however, have given the President of the Court power to summon a compulsory conference. In Victoria, where the Wages Board system is in force, there is no provision against strikes, but in Tasmania, where that system has also been adopted, penalties are provided for a lock-out or strike on account of any matter in respect of which a Board has made a determination.

Particulars were given as to the historical development, mode of constitution and general provisions of Wages Boards and Arbitration Courts in Year Book No. 9, pages 960 to 966. These refer to the regulation of wages and working conditions, and the prevention and settlement of industrial disputes.

2. Comparative Statement of Tribunals for Regulating Wages in Australia.—The table on pages 990 to 993 shews at a glance the Acts which operate in fixing wages, the constitution and function of tribunals enacted under them, and the effect and extent of the tribunal's decisions. It will be seen that in all the States there is machinery for the regulation of wages.

3. Movement Towards Uniformity.—The wide difference between the development in the several States of the Commonwealth of the regulation by State institutions of the remuneration and conditions of the workers has given rise to a desire on the part of the Commonwealth Government to secure uniformity throughout Australia by any suitable and constitutional action on the part of the Commonwealth. The provisions of States' wages laws vary considerably. In New South Wales, Victoria, and Western Australia considerable experience has been gained of their working. The system is newer in South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania. The desirability for uniformity has, as already mentioned, been recognised by the New South Wales Arbitration Court, which refused the Bootmakers' Union an award which would increase the wages of its members to amounts exceeding those paid in Victoria in the same trade, the express ground of the refusal being that New South Wales manufacturers would be handicapped by the payment of a higher rate of wage than that prevailing in Victoria.

4. Constitution Alteration Proposals.—Two proposed laws for the alteration of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth in regard to industries and businesses were submitted to the people for acceptance or rejection on the 26th April, 1911. The first law proposed to amend section 51 of the Constitution Act (see p. 21 hereinbefore) so as to give the Commonwealth Government increased powers to deal with (a) trade and commerce, (b) corporations, (c) industrial matters, and (d) trusts and monopolies. The second law proposed to insert, after section 51 of the Constitution Act, a section empowering the Commonwealth Government to make laws with respect to monopolies. Neither of the proposals was approved by the people. Fuller particulars are given on page 922 of Year Book No. 11. At the general elections, held on the 31st May, 1913, these and other matters were again submitted by referendum and again rejected.

§ 4. Operations under Wages Board and Industrial Arbitration Acts.

1. General.—Particulars regarding operations under the Commonwealth Arbitration Acts and the various State Acts for the regulation of wages, hours, and conditions of labour, shewing the number of boards authorised and constituted, and which had or which had not made any award or determination in each State; the number and territorial scope of awards or determinations, and the number of industrial agreements in force, were first compiled to the 31st December, 1913.*

These particulars have from time to time been revised, and reviews to the end of approximately quarterly periods have been published in the periodical Labour Bulletins to the 30th June, 1917, and thereafter in the Quarterly Summaries to the 31st December, 1918. Information has also been compiled and included in the later issues of the Labour Bulletin and Quarterly Summary respecting the estimated number of work-people affected by awards or determinations and industrial agreements in each State. In addition, a brief quarterly epitome has been given of the number of awards and determinations made and industrial agreements filed under the Act in force in each State and the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration and the Commonwealth (Public Service) Arbitration Acts. The following tabular statement gives particulars of the operations in each State and under the Commonwealth Statutes during each quarter of the years 1917 and 1918 respectively:—

Owing to the prevailing drought conditions and the advent of war during the year 1914, varying restrictive measures were introduced either for the suspension or curtailment of the operations of industrial tribunals in each of the States. During the second quarter of 1915 these restrictions were somewhat relaxed in New South Wales and Queensland, and early in the third quarter operations gradually assumed normal conditions in all the States. During the third and fourth quarters of 1915 greater activity was evidenced in each State, and this activity continued during the years 1916, 1917, and 1918. The number of awards and determinations (373) made by the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Court, the State Industrial Courts and Wages Boards, during the year 1918, was higher than the number made during the previous twelve months, when 319 awards and determinations were issued. The number of industrial agreements entered into during 1918 was 349, as compared with 251 during the year 1917. The number of awards issued by the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Court was 22, as compared with 33 during the previous year. The number of industrial agreements filed under the provisions of the Commonwealth Act shewed a large increase in comparison with the number filed during the previous year, the number filed during 1918 being 213, as against 135 during the year 1917.

The work of these Boards is now undertaken by the Court of Arbitration constituted under the Industrial Arbitration Act of 1916. ‡‡ On the 13th December, 1918, an order was made by the New South Wales Court of Industrial Arbitration recommending the reconstitution of 220 Industrial Boards which had expired by effluxion of time, and on the 19th February, 1919, such Boards were constituted.

It will be observed from the particulars set out in the above table that considerable expansion of the principle of the fixation of a legal minimum rate of wage and of working conditions took place during the five years ending 31st December, 1918. At the end of 1918, 291 additional awards or determinations were in force in the Commonwealth. The number of industrial agreements* made and in force under the various Acts increased during the five years under review by 432.

* The registration of industrial agreements is not provided for under the Acts in force in Victoria and Tasmania, but such agreements may be registered and filed under the provisions of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act to operate in any or in all States.

* The figures for New South Wales are exclusive of Demarcation Boards. † Including Boards which were subsequently dissolved, owing to alteration in the sectional arrangement of industries and callings. ‡ Including one Board subsequently superseded by three Boards. § In pursuance of the provisions of the Industrial Arbitration Act of 1916, all Industrial Boards appointed under the Industrial Peace Act of 1912 were dissolved on the 12th January, 1917, with the exception of those Boards which had matters pending or partly heard. At the 31st December, 1917, these Boards had also been dissolved. The work of the Boards appointed under the old Act is being undertaken by a Court of Arbitration constituted under the new Act. || Omitting a number of awards which expired on the 31st December, 1913. ¶ On the 13th December, 1918, an order was made by the New South Wales Court of Industrial Arbitration recommending the reconstitution of 220 Industrial Boards which had expired by effluxion of time, and on the 19th February, 1919, such Boards were constituted.
