CHAPTER XXXI.

STATISTICAL ORGANIZATION AND SOURCES OF INFORMATION.

§ 1. Statistical Organization in Australia.

- 1. Early Development of Australian Statistics.—(i) Crown Colony "Blue Books". Statistical organization in Australia was founded in the "Blue Books" which, in the Crown Colony days, were prepared annually for the information of the Colonial Office. Although primarily intended for administrative purposes, these documents have been important sources of statistical data, even though some important matters are not covered, and others only partially so. These "Blue Books" formed the basis from which later statistical publications were developed. This led to an element of uniformity in statistical compilation within the British Empire.
- (ii) Statistical Registers. Following the advent of responsible government, which was granted during the period 1851-1860 to all Australian States except Western Australia—and to that State in 1890—the "Blue Book" was succeeded in all States by "Statistical Registers". These were in many respects the old "Blue Books" in a new form, and were largely confined to summaries of the "by-product" statistics of government administrative departments.
- The first example of extensive government organization for purely statistical purposes was the taking of periodic population censuses, which were initiated in all States under the Crown Colony régime. The growing need for quantitative data concerning the progress of the several young communities of Australia eventually led to the appointment of official Statisticians commissioned to prepare and publish such data.
- (iii) Statistical Conferences. To enable the interchange of ideas between States and to obtain uniform State statistics which could be aggregated to Australian totals, conferences were held in the several States from as early as 1861. Altogether, six conferences were held prior to the formation of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics in 1906. These were held in 1861, 1875, 1890, 1900, 1902 and 1903. The holding of these conferences has been continued since the formation of the Commonwealth Bureau, and a representative from New Zealand attended up to 1928.
- 2. Creation of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics.—Under the provisions of section 51 of the Commonwealth Constitution, power is conferred on the Commonwealth Parliament "to make laws for the peace, order and good government of the Commonwealth with respect to—" (inter alia) "(XI.) Census and statistics". In compliance with this provision, the Census and Statistics Act 1905 was passed, and in 1906 the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics was created. A conference of Statisticians in 1906 defined the relations between the Commonwealth and State Bureaux, and in each case the State Statistician became the representative in his own State of the Commonwealth Statistician for the purpose of administering the Commonwealth Act. In addition, each State has its own "Statistics Act", and although these are not identical in all States, they embody common principles. The Commonwealth Bureau did not attempt to duplicate the existing statistical organization, but endeavoured to use the services of the State statistical offices whenever possible, and to undertake the initial collection of statistics only in fields not already occupied by the States, or in which efficiency demanded complete centralization.
- 3. Integration of Statistical Services.—The creation and development of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics, the frequent conferences of Commonwealth and State Statisticians, and the close and increasing liaison between officers dealing with the same subjects in the State and Commonwealth fields, did much to promote uniformity in the official statistical collections and methods employed throughout Australia. The complete realization of this aim could not, however, be achieved, even with the utmost cooperation of those concerned, while seven distinct statistical systems operated.

This became apparent after the 1914-18 War, when the economic problems that then arose drew attention to deficiencies in Australian statistical data. With a view to overcoming these weaknesses, the Prime Minister of the day proposed to the Premiers' Conference that State statistical offices be transferred to the Commonwealth. Tasmania alone agreed to this, and the transfer was effected in 1924. Since then, an amalgamated office has functioned satisfactorily in that State as a Commonwealth office which also serves State statistical needs.

The boom of the 1920's, the depression of the 1930's, the 1939-45 War, and the post-war boom, each with its special economic problems, imposed a severe strain on the Commonwealth and State statistical systems. Moreover, the development during and since the 1939-45 War of a very considerable volume of new statistics added greatly to the complexities of the several administrations in their efforts to secure, and maintain, uniformity in statistical collections. The establishment of Commonwealth statistical offices in some State capitals ameliorated the situation to some extent—indeed, without their establishment, the new and expanded statistical collections could not have been carried out at all. However, this did not solve the problem and constituted only one of a number of improvisations devised to obtain uniform data essential for national purposes, and to satisfy urgent demands for new series of statistics. Furthermore, the excessive amount of time and effort entailed in such improvisations made it impossible to devote the necessary time to the major question of meeting growing statistical needs promptly.

The emergence of the problem of providing uniform statistical services throughout Australia, adequate to meet present-day demands, was foreseen during the 1939-45 War, and in 1949 discussions with the Premiers were initiated by the Prime Minister, with the object of integrating the statistical services of the Commonwealth and the States by agreement. These negotiations were continued by correspondence, and subsequently all State Governments accepted the terms of draft agreements to integrate their respective statistical offices with that of the Commonwealth.

The Statistics (Arrangements with States) Bill was introduced into the Commonwealth Parliament on 17th April, 1956, its purpose being to seek parliamentary approval of the making of arrangements with individual States for, and the setting up of, integrated statistical services. This legislation, permissive in nature, was designed to enable the Commonwealth to enter into an agreement with any State to effect an amalgamation of Commonwealth and State statistical offices and services. The object of such an agreement was that, in each State accepting it, there would be an integrated statistical service operated by Commonwealth statistical officers under the immediate direction of a statistician in the State who would hold office under both the Commonwealth and State governments. Both Commonwealth and State were to be adequately served with statistics, and no State would be required to surrender its existing powers in the field of statistics. The rights of officers transferred under any agreement entered into were provided for. After passing through the usual stages of Parliament, the bill became law on 12th May, 1956.

Integration of the Commonwealth and State statistical services was finally accomplished when the integration arrangement with Victoria came into effect on 15th September, 1958.

4. Scope of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics.—The scope of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics has constantly been widened, more particularly during the 1939-45 War, when the Bureau responded to the urgent demands of administration for immediate and accurate statistical information in various fields. Since the War, requirements in the administrative, industrial, financial and scientific spheres have led to the development of many new statistical collections. All the activities of the Bureau are covered by the Census and Statistics Act, which confers authority to collect information and contains stringent provisions to ensure that the information obtained is treated in strictest secrecy.

The following sections of this paragraph relate specifically to the organization and operation of the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics in Canberra. In the State Offices, the pattern is broadly similar, although local requirements have naturally given rise to differences in detail.

For administrative purposes, the Commonwealth Bureau, Canberra, is divided into a number of Divisions. These are:—Census, Compiling, Development, Methodology and Sampling, Prices, Publications, Research and Social Accounts, Mechanical Tabulation and Administrative.

- (a) Census Division. This Division of the Bureau is responsible for the taking of periodic population censuses, and the tabulation, summarization and preparation for publication of the results obtained.
- (b) Compiling Division. The Compiling Division is divided into the following Branches which compile statistics dealing with specific fields of activity.

Trade and Transport Branch—Responsible for the original compilation, tabulation and analysis of statistics relating to imports and exports, and for the compilation of statistics relating to road and rail transport, aviation, shipping, posts, telegraphs and telephones, and broadcasting and television.

- Employment and Labour Branch—Compiles all employment estimates, wage and labour statistics.
- Primary Production Branch—Deals with statistics relating to agricultural and pastoral activities, mining, forestry and fishing. Original data are supplied largely by the Deputy Commonwealth Statistician in each State.
- Secondary Production Branch—Compiles all factory statistics, both annual and monthly. Collates on a Commonwealth basis original data supplied by Deputy Commonwealth Statisticians.
- Finance and Taxation Branch—Compiles statistics of private finance (banking, insurance, exchange rates, etc.), public finance (Commonwealth, State, and Local and Semi-Governmental authorities), and statistics relating to all aspects of Commonwealth taxation.
- Demography Branch—Concerned with statistics of births, deaths, marriages and migration, and the making of periodic estimates of population.
- (c) Development Division. This Division was created in order to develop new statistical collections to meet post-war demands for more adequate and up-to-date statistics, and also to examine current collections in the light of such requirements. It is divided into the following two Branches.
 - Development Branch—Develops new statistical collections and examines current collections in the light of present-day requirements. Included in the latter are Social Statistics.
 - Business Statistics Branch—Conducts censuses and surveys and analyses statistics relating to internal trade (retail), business and hire purchase activities, and company investments and profits.
- (d) Methodology and Sampling Division. Undertakes the development of sampling procedures and their application to statistical collections, and furnishes technical advice to other Divisions and Departments.
- (e) Prices Division. Deals with the collection of retail and wholesale prices and the compilation of retail and wholesale price index numbers. A staff of trained field officers is maintained in the several States to facilitate the collection of accurate information.
- (f) Publications Division. This Division is responsible for the editing and graphical illustration of all Bureau publications, and, in collaboration with other Divisions, for the initiation, development and co-ordination of statistical publications. It also maintains a regular flow of statistical series to certain international organizations, and revises statistical material in certain oversea and local publications.
- (g) Research and Social Accounts Division. This Division is responsible for the preparation of all estimates in the field of social accounts and for research into this and other fields of statistics. It is divided into four branches as follows.
 - National Income and Expenditure Branch—Prepares and analyses estimates of national income and expenditure and tables of social accounts.
 - Balance of Payments Branch—Prepares and analyses estimates of Australia's balance of international payments.
 - Quantum Indexes Branch—Prepares indexes of quantum of imports, exports, etc., and undertakes research into quantum of production, national expenditure, etc.
 - Research Branch-Carries out research into specific fields of statistics.
- (h) Mechanical Tabulation Division. This Division is equipped with modern tabulating equipment including four electronic units, and is responsible for all machine tabulating work required by other Divisions of the Bureau with the exception of the Census Division. It also carries out work for other Commonwealth Departments as capacity is available.
- (i) Administrative Division. The Administrative Division is responsible for all aspects of staff recruitment and direction, supplies, payment of accounts, etc. The Reproduction Section of the Division is equipped with multilith and duplicating machines for processing statistical statements for more immediate requirements. In addition, a section of this Division is responsible for the co-ordination of statistics in Commonwealth Departments (see para. 5 below). The specialized library of official and unofficial publications on statistics and economics is controlled by the Administrative Division.

5. Relation of the Bureau to other Commonwealth Departments.—In October, 1950, the Commonwealth Public Service Board issued a circular relative to the compilation of statistics in other Commonwealth Departments, in which it stated that the Commonwealth Statistician should be the co-ordinating authority on all statistics in Commonwealth Departments, and that, as a general principle, where any new statistical field is to be established involving the regular collection of statistics, the Commonwealth Statistician should be consulted to ensure that they are necessary and that they are based on sound statistical methods; furthermore, that the Commonwealth Statistician should make a regular inspection, at least once every twelve months, of all statistical work done by Departments to ensure that their needs are met by the most economical means and without duplication of effort.

This project of co-ordination is being implemented as statistical developments require and as time and circumstances permit.

§ 3. The Third Conference of British Commonwealth Statisticians, Canberra, 1951.

Conferences of the Government Statisticians of the British Commonwealth were held first in London in 1920 and then in Ottawa in 1935. The third Conference was held in Canberra, from 12th to 23rd November, 1951. Delegates were present from Australia, Canada, Ceylon, India, New Zealand and the United Kingdom (including a representative of the Colonial Office). Ireland, the Commonwealth Economic Committee and the United Nations were represented by observers, and the Australian State Government Statisticians were also present. A summary of the activities of the conference may be found in Official Year Book No. 39, page 1320. The fourth Conference was held in London in 1956 and the fifth was held in New Zealand in November, 1960.

§ 4. Select List of Australian Books.

(Compiled by the Librarian of the Commonwealth National Library.)

This list of Australian Books is designed to meet the growing need, in Australia as publishing develops, and overseas as interest in Australia widens, for an authoritative current reference and reading list of books dealing with Australia, or of Australian authorship, wherever published.

Australians will find these books in the National Library and in their State Libraries as well as in leading bookshops. Oversea readers may have access to them in the collections which the National Library maintains at 57 Australian posts in 43 countries, at places such as Australian Embassies, or Offices of the Australian High Commission, Consulate-General, Consulate or Trade Commissioners. They will be found also, increasingly, in leading libraries and bookshops in many countries. For example, they are supplied by the National Library to the National Library of Canada and the National Diet Library, Japan. In the United States, also, Australian books are included in the Farmington Plan in which 62 libraries and research institutions co-operate to ensure that at least one copy of all material published in any part of the world, and likely to be required for a serious purpose, will be available promptly somewhere in the country.

The list is classified broadly by subject, and under each heading there is first a list of the principal standard books still in print, then a list of selected books and official publications (excluding annual reports) published in the last few years. To ensure that, so far as is possible, an evenness of standard is maintained in the compilation of the list, the advice of a representative range of experts in the various subject fields has been sought. Where known, the retail price in the country of publication is given, but this is subject to fluctuation.

The Library also issues a series of select lists which include:—Australian Public Affairs Information Service (monthly and, since 1955, cumulated annually); a subject index of material in new books, pamphlets, current periodicals and government publications from English-speaking countries, with an important bearing on investigations into Australian political, economic, cultural and social affairs; and the following full bibliographies.

- Australian National Bibliography, a monthly list of monographs (including government publications), maps, prints, sheet music and moving picture films, of Australian interest.
- An annual cumulation of Australian National Bibliography and an annual publication entitled Australian Government Publications, listing Commonwealth and State government monographs and serials.

1958-59.

The average price of wool at auctions fell, during the year ended June, 1959, to 47½ per lb., the lowest level since 1948-49. Low opening prices were followed by even lower prices during the main selling season, but prices recovered later. Reduced returns from the wool clip were, however, largely offset by increased world meat prices. In particular, market conditions in the United States enabled Australian producers to ship low-grade beef at very profitable prices. World butter prices also increased steeply and there was a normal harvest following the poor harvest in the drought year 1957-58.

During the year, exports of merchandise were £807,000,000, only slightly below the previous year (£810,000,000). Imports of merchandise in 1958-59 were £794,000,000, £5,000,000 greater than in 1957-58. As a result of an improved capital inflow, international reserves fell by only £9,000,000 to £516,000,000.

The level of internal activity remained largely unaffected by the decline in economic activity overseas. Production, employment, and retail sales showed increases during the year.

The number of persons in civilian employment (excluding rural and female household domestic employees) increased by 50,000 during the year to 2,941,000, and retail sales rose from £579,000,000 in the June quarter, 1958, to £614,000,000 in the June quarter, 1959, an increase of over six per cent. The rate of investment also increased during the year. Registrations of new motor vehicles in June, 1959, were nearly 12 per cent. higher than in the previous June, and the number of new houses and flats commenced increased from 19,500 in the June quarter, 1958, to 21,000 in the June quarter, 1959.

Between the June quarter, 1958, and the June quarter, 1959, the consumer price index rose from 114.8 to 116.8 and the average weekly wage per male unit rose from £19.93 to £20.44.

1959-60.

1959-60 opened with bright prospects for Australia's external trade. The wool price in September, 1959, was more than 20 per cent. higher than a year earlier. Profitable meat and butter exports seemed likely to continue and more wheat was available for export.

The Government felt that conditions were favourable for abandoning the import restrictions which had been imposed in March, 1952. Nearly all special restrictions on imports from the dollar area had been removed during 1958-59 and almost all the remaining restrictions on imports generally were abandoned in February, 1960 (see p. 471).

Compared with 1958-59 both exports and imports of merchandise increased, from £807,000,000 to £926,000,000 and from £794,000,000 to £925,000,000 respectively.

Internal activity intensified throughout the year. Following the increase in the basic wage in June, 1959, wage margins were increased in November, 1959, mostly by 28 per cent. Average weekly earnings per male unit rose from £20.44 in the June quarter, 1959, to £22.66 in the June quarter, 1960, a rise of more than 10 per cent. The number of persons in civilian employment (other than rural and female household domestic employees) increased from 2,941,000 to 3,047,000, the increase being more heavily concentrated in factories.

The rise in wages increased demand for most types of consumer goods, particularly consumer durables. The number of new motor cars registered rose from 13,700 during June, 1959, to 18,700 in June, 1960, and balances outstanding under hire purchase agreements rose from £355,000,000 to £422,000,000.

During the months following the lifting of import restrictions in February, 1960, the level of imports increased steadily. By the beginning of 1960-61, the degree of inflation had strengthened and labour shortages and other symptoms of boom conditions appeared throughout the economy. In consequence, the Budget presented in August, 1960, was framed with the object of curbing demand and preventing further increases in prices and costs. It provided for an increase in income tax and a cash surplus of £15,500,000 for 1960-61. At the same time the Reserve Bank asked trading banks to restrict new lending and to reduce overdrafts. However, despite these restrictions outstanding advances rose by £65,000,000 between June and December, 1960. In the early months of the year, the consumer price index continued to rise, and share prices, car registrations, housing commencements and balances outstanding on hire purchase agreements all rose to record levels.

To protect Australia's international reserves, which had dropped to £413,000,000 by the end of October, a fall of £111,000,000 in twelve months, a further series of measures were introduced by the Government and the Reserve Bank in November providing for a further tightening of credit restrictions, an increase in the rate of sales tax on motor vehicles from 30 per cent. to 40 per cent., and an increase in the maximum interest rate on bank overdrafts to seven per cent.

Despite the fact that the Government took steps early in 1961 to increase employment on public works, the number of persons in receipt of unemployment benefit rose from 10,364 in October, 1960, to 54,254 in June, 1961, and the total number in civilian employment (other than rural workers and female private domestics) fell from 3,073,000 to 3,021,000.

Retail sales during the first six months of 1961 were less than two per cent. above those during the corresponding months of 1960 and the value of new buildings commenced fell from £145,000,000 in the June quarter, 1960, to £124,000,000 in the June quarter, 1961. Registrations of new motor vehicles during the first six months of 1961 were only 115,000, compared with 167,000 during the previous six months, although the sales tax rates on motor cars were restored to the former level in February, 1961.

Output fell in most secondary industries and the level of advances by trading banks and of balances outstanding on hire-purchase agreements also declined substantially in the second half of 1960-61.

The effect of the restrictions on the level of imports was more delayed. Imports, which exceeded £100,000,000 during October, 1960, were still as high as £90,000,000 in March, 1961, and international reserves had dropped a further £40,000,000 between October and February. A belief by some importers that import controls would be re-introduced was perhaps responsible for the sustained high level of imports, but the government adhered to its policy of freedom from controls and, instead, arranged for a drawing of £78,000,000 from the International Monetary Fund and further stand-by credit.

The year 1960-61 was below the previous year in pastoral production, but well above average in agricultural production. Wheat produced totalled 270,000,000 bushels, 50,000,000 bushels above the previous record. Wool prices were somewhat lower, but the overall gross value of rural production increased from £1,323,000,000 to £1,375,000,000.

Export incentives by way of tax concessions and the negotiation of wheat sales to Mainland China helped to promote exports and, although exports were at a lower level in the earlier months of 1960-61, from March, 1961, the level increased sharply. Total merchandise exported at £928,000,000 was slightly higher than in 1959-60.

3rd July.—Following the joining by the United Kingdom of the European Free Trade Association, United Kingdom preference guarantees were waived on nine products, including lead and zinc.

22nd July.—Oversea shipping rates on exports increased by 6 per cent. Import rates to rise by 7½ per cent. from 1st October.

8th August.—Reserve Bank asked banks to make immediate and significant cut in rate of new lending and guard against providing finance for "speculative activities".

11th August.—Oil refinery planned for Port Alma, Queensland, at cost of £15,000,000.

13th August.—Commonwealth Statistician issued new Consumer Price Index.

16th August.—Commonwealth Budget for 1960-61 introduced into House of Representatives.

In 1959-60, receipts of the Consolidated Revenue Fund (excluding self-balancing items) were £1,431,800,000. The expenditure (excluding self-balancing items and the payment of £41,400,000 to the Loan Consolidation and Industrial Reserve) amounted to £1,390,400,000. The main items of revenue (1958-59 receipts shown in parentheses) were: Income Taxes £671,300,000 (£608,700,000); Excise Duties £252,400,000 (£237,200,000); Customs Duties £84,400,000 (£71,700,000); and Sales Tax £164,200,000 (£143,600,000). The main items of expenditure were: Payments to or for the States £321,400,000 (£286,600,000); Social and Health Services £299,400,000 (£278,200,000); Defence Services (excluding £12,000,000 and £37,300,000 provided from Loan Fund in 1959-60 and 1958-59 respectively) £181,600,000 (£152,000,000); War and Repatriation Services £137,500,000 (£128,500,000), and Capital Works and Services £142,100,000 (£132,400,000).

The Budget for 1960-61 provided for an estimated expenditure of £1,670,800,000 of which £1,358,100,000 would be provided from the Consolidated Revenue Fund and £312,700,000 from the Loan Fund. In addition, it was expected that £125,700,000 would be available for payment to the Loan Consolidation and Investment Reserve.

For 1960-61, it was estimated that expenditure would be £85,500,000 and revenue £85,800,000, thus leaving a surplus of £300,000.

14th September.—1960-61 Budget introduced into New South Wales Legislative Assembly. During 1959-60, the transactions of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, Railways, Metropolitan and Newcastle Transport Services and Sydney Harbour Services resulted in a surplus of £70,000. After providing for debt charges, there were deficits of £4,100,000 on the Railways and £2,300,000 on the Metropolitan and Newcastle Transport Services. 1961-62.

Exports, especially of wheat, continued at the high level of the closing months of 1960-61 and improved further as the year proceeded. The total of merchandise exported for 1961-62 was £1,069,000,000 as against £928,000,000 for 1960-61. This was largely a result of the disposal of all accumulated wheat stocks available for export, of improved wool prices and of increases in the export of steel and some other non-primary products.

Overall primary production was approximately at the same level as in 1960-61. In quantity, the wool clip was somewhat higher, but other pastoral production and grain crops were somewhat lower. The wheat crop at 247,000,000 bushels was 10 per cent. below 1960-61.

Imports, on the other hand, were affected by the reduced internal activity which had followed the "credit squeeze" initiated in November, 1960. By the beginning of 1961-62, imports had dropped to a level of about £70,000,000 monthly and remained at about that level until December. During the first half of 1962, they showed a rising tendency partly as a result of rising internal activity. In total, imports of merchandise were £883,000,000 in 1961-62 compared with £1,085,000,000 in 1960-61, and there was a favourable trade balance of £186,000,000 in 1961-62, compared with a trade deficit of £157,000,000 in 1960-61.

This improved trade position was reflected in an increase in Australia's international reserves. The drawing of £78,000,000 made from the International Monetary Fund in April, 1961, was repaid in April, 1962. Nevertheless, reserves in June, 1962, at £561,000,000 were £10,000,000 higher than in June, 1961.

The favourable external picture was in contrast with the internal one. Already in June, 1961, it had become apparent that the effect of the restrictive measures of November, 1960, had been stronger than anticipated, as shown by a drop in employment and bank advances, and a level of unemployment higher than for some years. The whole of 1961-62 was therefore characterized by a series of measures to stimulate the economy. In June, 1962, the Reserve Bank had announced an easing of credit and in October all restrictions were removed from bank lending. The Commonwealth Budget introduced in August provided for a deficit of £16,500,000. A small increase in civilian employment occurred between June and December, but as this was regarded as insufficient, the Government in February, 1961, announced a series of further financial measures designed to increase employment and business confidence—an additional grant of £25,000,000 to the States for 1961-62, a 20 per cent. investment allowance for taxation purposes on purchases of plant for manufacturing industry, a rebate of income tax of 5 per cent. retrospective for the whole of 1961-62, and a further reduction in the sales tax rate for motor vehicles. A more rapid rate of recovery took place from March onwards, but by June production in many fields had still not reached the level of two years earlier.

Registration of new motor cars and station wagons increased by 39 per cent. and the value of buildings approved by 11 per cent. from June quarter, 1961, to June quarter, 1962. Employment in June, 1962, was 2 per cent. greater than in the previous June, and the average weekly earnings per male unit in the June quarter was 3½ per cent. higher than in the June quarter, 1961.

Balances outstanding in instalment credit for retail sales fell until the third quarter of the year. Bank liquidity was high, bank advances in June, 1962, being only I per cent. higher than in June, 1961. Public loans were oversubscribed and savings deposits showed large increases.

The consumer price index fell by nearly one per cent. between the June quarters, 1961 and 1962. This was largely due to a fall in food prices.

Of significance in Australia's long-term prospects were the discovery of oil at Tara, South Queensland, and the commencement of regular rail services on the new standard gauge railway between Sydney and Melbourne.
