EXPLANATORY NOTES

This bulletin is the third in a new series "Social Statistics" which will present statistics on education, health, welfare and justice. It replaces series relating to Divorce Statistics previously included in issues of the Australian Demographic Review. The last of these, No. 129 - Divorce, 1960, was issued on 4th July, 1961. Other bulletins issued in this series are No. 1 - Schools, 1960 and No. 2 - Hospitals, 1960.

The tables relating to dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage and judicial separation have been prepared from statistics compiled by the Statisticians in the various States and from returns received from judicial authorities in the Northern Territory and the Australian Capital Territory. They relate, mainly, to the first quarter of 1961, but figures for earlier periods are shown for purposes of comparison.

In 1959, the Commonwealth Parliament passed the Matrimonial Causes Act 1959, which came into operation on 1st February, 1961. This Act establishes uniform grounds throughout the whole of the Commonwealth for the termination of marriage, and supersedes the matrimonial causes laws of the States and Territories except in so far as the transitional provisions of the Act keep them in force for the purpose of completing pending proceedings.

Until the operation of the Commonwealth Matrimonial Causes Act 1959 (on 1st February, 1961) the grounds for dissolution of marriage varied between each State and Territory. For example: -

- (i) Insanity was not a ground in New South Wales or the Australian Capital Territory;
- (ii) in New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory a suit for dissolution of marriage could forthwith be instituted against a respondent who failed to comply with an order for restitution of conjugal rights;
- (iii) separation for over five years was a ground only in Western Australia;
- (iv) separation for over five years under a decree of judicial separation or an order granting relief from co-habitation was a ground only in South Australia; and
- (v) impotence was a ground for dissolution of marriage in Western Australia, but a ground for nullity of marriage in each other State and Territory.

In addition, some dissolutions granted under previous Commonwealth legislation in a particular State could be on grounds not provided for in that State's legislation.

The grounds on which dissolutions and nullities of marriage and judicial separations were granted in each State and Territory are shown in Table 8. The proportions of marriages dissolved in each State and Territory on these grounds are shown in Table 9.

Of the 2220 petitions lodged (for dissolution) in the three months ended 31st March, 1961, 1175 were under the new legislation. All decrees granted during this period related to petitions lodged under the old legislation.

(b) The term "children" used in the Commonwealth legislation refers to living "children of the marriage" under 21 years. However, as the dissolutions in this period were granted to petitions lodged under old legislation, it has not been possible to make the data in the table above conform exactly to this definition. For instance, New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland and Western Australia included children whether living or dead; and only Queensland included adopted children.
