INTERNATIONAL TRADE - REQUESTS TO CONFIDENTIALISE DATA

INTRODUCTION

This paper explains why and how some detailed international merchandise trade statistics are suppressed for confidentiality reasons and describes the relevant legislation under which the data are suppressed. It goes on to provide information on how an entity may register an objection to the disclosure of its data and how such objections are handled by the ABS. The entity lodging such objections is referred to as the claimant.

As Australia's national statistical agency, the ABS has a responsibility to ensure that it provides a quality statistical service while also respecting the rights of those individuals or businesses who provide information from which the statistics are derived.

In providing its statistical service, the ABS operates with due regard to:

- the public benefit generated from access to statistics;
- government policies such as community service obligations;
- user pays, access and equity principles; and
- the Information Privacy Principles.

ABS LEGISLATION

The ABS has a legal obligation to ensure that confidential data are not released. The Census and Statistics Act 1905 sets out the rules governing the collection and dissemination of statistics undertaken by the ABS. The Act provides strong protection for the confidentiality of information supplied to the ABS.

In relation to International Trade statistics, the relevant ABS legislation which makes provision for the protection of confidential data is:

- (a) the Census and Statistics Act 1905 (CSA), subsection 12(2), and subsection 13(1); and
- (b) the Statistics Determination under section 13 of the CSA.

Clause 2 of the Statistics Determination under section 13 of the CSA provides that:

" information in the form of statistics relating to foreign trade, being statistics derived wholly or in part from Customs documents" (Clause 2(2)(b)) ".....may, with the approval in writing of the Australian Statistician, be disclosed except where -

- (a) in the case of information relating to a person, being an individual - that person;
- (b) in the case of information relating to an official body - the responsible Minister in relation to that official body; or
- (c) in the case of information relating to an organisation - a responsible officer of that organisation, has shown that such disclosure would be likely to enable the identification of that particular person or organisation." (Clause 2(1))

REASONS FOR RESTRICTING THE RELEASE OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE STATISTICS

Potentially, aggregate international merchandise trade statistics are available in a great deal of detail but not all the possible classifications are released. Restrictions are placed on the release of statistics where the data for a claimant is identifiable and that claimant has requested that the data be suppressed. In practice, the way that a restriction is achieved is to conceal the sensitive information by combining it with other data.

REASONS FOR RESTRICTING THE RELEASE OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE STATISTICS-continued

There are many reasons for requests for confidentiality, for example:

- a claimant may not want the total value and/or unit values of their imports or exports to be known, as such knowledge may be damaging to their business activities;
- a claimant may want to protect details of the volumes they trade or the countries from which they import or to which they export;
- an imported commodity may be the subject of an anti-dumping inquiry; or
- exports to or imports from certain countries may be politically sensitive and the claimant may be concerned that disclosure of the country of origin/destination may provoke protests or boycotting from other countries or some sections of the local community.

The ABS will investigate every request for a restriction in terms of the number of traders and the respective significance of their trade. However, regardless of the reason for requesting confidentiality, if the person or organisation has shown that disclosure would enable the identification of that person or organisation, then the ABS is legally required not to disclose the information.

HOW TO MAKE A REQUEST FOR CONFIDENTIALITY RESTRICTIONS

If a claimant considers that information in the form of international merchandise trade statistics is likely to identify their operations and this is of concern to them, they can request that the data be suppressed by completing the attached Confidentiality Request Form (CRF). The completed form should be sent to:

The Confidentiality Manager
International Trade Section
Australian Bureau of Statistics
PO Box 10
BELCONNEN ACT 2616
Facsimile: (02) 6252 7438

The CRF should include details of:

- the reason that the restriction has been requested;
- the commodity in question, including its HS classification code;
- the statistical classifications which are likely to reveal the claimant's business activities. For example, the claimant may be the predominant importer of a commodity into a particular State or the sole exporter to a particular country;
- the type of data restriction requested. For example, suppression of the unit value for an item, or the details of trade with a particular country, or all details relating to a commodity; and
- the name of the organisation lodging the export data with ACS (for exports) or the owner code (for imports). This information is useful to the ABS in identifying the importer/exporter's trade transactions in Australian Customs records.

In cases where a claim is based on trade that is about to start, details should be provided of expected volumes of trade in addition to the other details listed above.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE - REQUESTS TO CONFIDENTIALISE DATA

HOW THE ABS HANDLES REQUESTS FOR CONFIDENTIALITY RESTRICTIONS

After receiving a request for a commodity restriction, the ABS will investigate the claim. If the investigation confirms that the business activities of the claimant are being disclosed, an appropriate restriction will be implemented. Outlined below are the procedures that the ABS follows in undertaking a confidentiality investigation:

(a) All trade transactions, for the commodity for which a restriction has been requested, are listed for each of the previous 12 months. This shows, for each importer/exporter as well as in aggregate:

- the names of individuals and organisations trading in the commodity;
- countries of origin/final destination for imports and exports respectively;
- state of final destination/origin for imports and exports respectively; and
- value and quantity of the imports/exports.

This listing is used to confirm (or otherwise) the claimant's concerns. The assumption is made that future trade will be similar in significance and distribution to that of the previous 12 months period.

(b) If some of the claimant's trade is identifiable in the aggregates, the next step is to determine, in consultation with the claimant, what type of restriction will satisfy its concern. In doing so, in addition to suppressing a particular aggregate directly, care is taken to make sure that the aggregate is not derivable from other cross-classifications. The aim is to always use the restriction which maximises data availability but which still provides confidentiality to the claimant.

(c) In most cases where a claimant's trade is found to be identifiable, an appropriate restriction on the release of the relevant aggregate will be put in place for a minimum of 12 months. However, if the pattern of trade is infrequent, it may be possible to restrict the data for only those months in which the claimant has trade. In this way the claimant's concerns can be met for the periods during which it trades while still releasing useful data for other periods. If this option is used, the claimant will be requested to provide notice of the timing of future trade (date of arrival/departure) so that appropriate restrictions can be put in place before the start of statistical processing for the months involved.

(d) On completion of the investigation, the claimant will be contacted in writing and advised of the outcome. Details of the type of restriction being implemented, the commencement date and the next expected review date for the restriction, will be provided.

(e) If the claimant is not satisfied with the outcome, they should contact the Confidentiality Manager. For contact details, see below.

TYPES OF CONFIDENTIALITY RESTRICTIONS AVAILABLE

Where restriction of statistics is necessary to preserve confidentiality, the ABS negotiates with the claimant on a form of restriction which protects the claimant's interests while still allowing as much useful statistical information as possible to be released. Where it has been shown that release of certain international merchandise trade statistics would breach confidentiality, one of the following restrictions will be applied to the commodity for which the restriction has been requested:

INTERNATIONAL TRADE - REQUESTS TO CONFIDENTIALISE DATA

Type of Restriction	How the Restriction will Affect Output
No State Details	Suppresses all details of Australian States of final destination/discharge for imports, and Australian State of loading/origin for exports.
Selected State Details	As per No State Details except that only nominated States are suppressed in output, eg Selected State Details NSW, VIC means separate data are not available for NSW or VIC, but they are available for other States.
No Country Details	Suppresses all details of source countries for imports and destination countries for exports; including all overseas port details.
Selected Country Details	As per No Country Details except that only nominated countries are suppressed in output, eg Selected Country Details USA, BRAZ, FGMY means separate data are not available for USA, Brazil or Germany, however they are available for other countries.
No State x Country Details	For selected countries, all State or nominated State details are not provided.
No Quantity Details	Suppresses all quantity and gross weight details.
No Duty Details (import clearances)	Suppresses details of duty paid, duty rate, treatment code and preference code for import commodities.
Combinations of the above	eg: a No Country x No State x No Quantity restriction for export data would suppress all details of destination countries, including all overseas port details, all details of Australian State of origin and all quantity and gross weight details.
No Value Details	Suppresses all value details.
No Value Details for Country	Suppresses all value details by country but retains quantity details by country.
No Commodity Details	Suppresses all commodity details.

Attachment A to this Paper shows examples of the way that statistics which are affected by the various confidentiality restrictions will appear in ABS output.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE - REQUESTS TO CONFIDENTIALISE DATA

IMPLEMENTATION DATE FOR PLACING A COMMODITY RESTRICTION

The restriction chosen to prevent release of confidential data is generally implemented from the beginning of the next month following the completion of the review. Only in exceptional circumstances are restrictions applied to data already processed.

Where trade is yet to commence, a restriction is not put in place until trade actually commences. The claimant is required to inform the ABS of the month in which they expect the trade to commence. In these cases, the restriction will normally be reviewed after three to six months.

DURATION OF A RESTRICTION

Once a restriction is in place the data remains restricted in all output until the restriction is lifted or changed. Restrictions are reviewed periodically to see if they are still warranted in their current form. With changes in the pattern of trade a restriction may be:

- dropped completely;
- amend to restrict less data: or
- tightened to restrict more data.

On completion of the periodic review the claimant is contacted by letter to advise the outcome of the review. If the review had indicated that the data are no longer confidential the claimant is advised accordingly and the restriction is lifted from the month following the review.

It should be noted that the type of restriction placed on a commodity is based on an analysis of trading patterns for the 12 months preceding the initial request. As further data analysis will not be undertaken for at least 12 months, it is important that claimants continue to monitor the statistics in which they have an interest to ensure that current data restrictions continue to meet their requirements. If major changes to trading patterns do occur and the claimant has concerns that their data could now be exposed, they should contact the Confidentiality Manager to request a further review.

THE CONFIDENTIAL COMMODITIES LIST (CCL)

Confidentiality restrictions in Australia's international merchandise trade statistics are all applied at the commodity level. That is, whether the restriction is to suppress country, State, value or duty, it is recorded against the specific commodity item. Details of restrictions on any particular item that are in place for any period are available in the Confidentiality Commodities List (CCL). The CCL details all import and export commodities which have been subjected to confidentiality restrictions since 1 January 1988 and is available in electronic or paper format. Sample pages are shown in Attachment B. The CCL is updated at the start of each month and can be supplied, free of charge, periodically or upon request.

EXAMPLES OF HOW CONFIDENTIALITY RESTRICTIONS IMPACT ON INTERNATIONAL MERCHANDISE TRADE STATISTICS RELEASED BY ABS

This attachment provides examples of the way that statistics which are affected by the various confidentiality restrictions appear in ABS output.

Example 1 below presents details of exports of a hypothetical commodity (with the export code '12345678') for one quarter (March quarter) classified by country of destination and State of origin. No confidentiality restrictions have been applied to the data.

Examples 2-8 show the same set of statistics but for each of these examples a different confidentiality restriction has been applied.

Examples 9 & 10 show how data subject to a confidentiality restriction would appear in comprehensive tables showing more than one commodity.

'NO COMMODITY DETAILS' RESTRICTION

In tables showing two or more commodities exported or imported by country or State, any commodities subject to a restriction would be included in a single dummy confidentiality code so that data on total trade for that country or State continues to be available.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE - REQUESTS TO CONFIDENTIALISE DATA

EXAMPLE 9. Example 9 shows selected commodities exported to the United Kingdom in the March quarter 1998. Any selected commodities subject to a 'No Commodity Details' restriction, a 'SELECTED 'No Country Details' restriction, or 'Selected Country Details' restriction (where the COMMODITIES BY selected country is the United Kingdom) would be included in the one dummy COUNTRY' confidentiality code - 99999999. RESTRICTION

PRESENTATION OF DATA Confidentiality restrictions are normally only applied at the commodity level. IN NON COMMODITY TABLES

Where a table does not show detail at the commodity level, eg. total exports by country, confidentiality restrictions would not be applied to the data in the table. Similarly where a State table does not show any detail at the commodity level, eg. total exports by State of origin, confidentiality restrictions would not be applied to the data in the table.
