

UNDERTAKING BY A RESPONSIBLE OFFICER OF AN ORGANISATION

Disclosure of individual statistical records

The Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) assists and encourages informed decision making by allowing organisations and individuals to access, for statistical and research purposes only, detailed ABS information in the form of individual statistical records (the information) with all direct identifiers, such as name and address, removed and – if the information relates to an individual – in a manner that is not likely to enable the identification of the individual.

Information in the form of individual statistical records may be disclosed by the ABS under subsection 15(1) of the Census and Statistics (Information Release and Access) Determination 2018 (the Determination) where:

- all direct identifiers, such as name and address, have been removed (paragraph 15(1)(a) of the Determination); and
- if the information relates to an individual – the information is disclosed in a manner that is not likely to enable the identification of the individual (section 7 and paragraph 15(1)(b) of the Determination); and
- the Statistician has been given an undertaking in relation to the information that complies with section 10 and subsection 15(2) of the Determination; and
- the Statistician (or their delegate) has approved the disclosure of the information in writing (section 8 of the Determination).

To ensure compliance with the Determination and the Census and Statistics Act 1905 (C&S Act), the ABS reserves the right to select an appropriate method to disclose the information to an organisation or an individual. This may include the use of a system with strict access conditions as well as physical and/or virtual security controls.

Undertaking

This undertaking is a legally binding agreement. By signing the undertaking the responsible officer binds the organisation to comply with the conditions in the undertaking.

The Statistician may also require undertakings from each individual in the organisation who will have access to the information to ensure the individual will abide by the conditions in the undertaking.

Failure to comply with this undertaking

Under subsection 19(3) of the C&S Act, where a person gives an undertaking to the Statistician in accordance with the Determination, failure to comply with the undertaking is an offence. Failure to comply may result in a penalty of up to 120 penalty units or imprisonment for 2 years, or both.

Where an organisation or an individual in the organisation fails to comply with the undertaking, the ABS may take other actions but reserves the right to pursue legal penalties.

Responsible officer

For the purposes of the Determination, a responsible officer means, in relation to an organisation, an officer of the organisation acting within the scope of authority exercisable by the officer, in accordance with arrangements approved by the organisation.

Whether an officer of an organisation is a responsible officer will therefore depend on the approved arrangements of the particular organisation, but may include:

- For Universities: a Vice-Chancellor, Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Pro Vice-Chancellor or University Registrar.
- For Government departments or agencies: Statutory Head, Secretary of Department, Head of Agency or equivalent.
- For all other organisations: a person who has the equivalent level of legal responsibility for the actions of the organisation as a Department Secretary does for a Government department. This will usually be someone with the status of CEO, Company Secretary or Managing Director.

  - i. access only the information which the Statistician (or their delegate) has given the Organisation approval to access;
  - j. as soon as practicable, report to the ABS any possible unauthorised access, modification, disclosure, use or interference of the information, and will cooperate with the ABS to contain, assess, remediate, notify and review the reported incident;
  - k. not release any outputs derived from the information that include individual statistical records, without written approval from the ABS;
  - l. ensure all individuals accessing the information (including individuals outside the Organisation) are aware of their obligations in relation to the information, including under this and any other undertaking; and will support the individuals to comply with their obligations, including by providing appropriate physical, technological, and supervisory environments when accessing the information;
