SUBJECT: Maintaining the relevance of the CPI

My husband is a member of Comsuper and receives a fortnightly pension as an entitlement for service in the RAAF. It is supposed to be indexed to the CPI.

However, as you show on your website there is a high rise in the cost of fruit [15%] as well as the cost of fuel. These costs effect us a lot, but the increases in electricity and car insurance are even greater.

Where is the relevance of the CPI when these are not taken into account? Our income is tied to CPI increases and this figure does not reflect these changes.

Sincerely

Pam Duncan
