

Director
Prices Development
Economic Analysis and Reporting
Australian Bureau of Statistics
Locked Bag 10
Belconnen, ACT, 261

With the majority of Australian consumer goods imported, the CPI is weighted towards production costs of other countries and our variable exchange rate. In order to get a handle on domestic costs, in addition to the CPI, we need is a Domestic Production CPI (DPCPI) that measures price movements in a basket of domestically produced food, goods and services.

Brian McNiven